Council adopts temporary changes to traffic flow

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

Town officials have agreed to institute interim measures to help alleviate traffic congestion at the Westglen School parking lot until a more permanent solution can be found.

The north road into the school will be changed to a westbound one-way road into the school parking lot and the south road will be an eastbound one-way road exiting the school, town council decided at its March 25 meeting.

The school has been having an issue with traffic congestion for the past few years and the problem has been getting worse as more parents are continuing to drop off and pick up their children, said principal Carolyn Massel.

"None of our schools in Chinook's Edge (School Division) were designed for these kinds of volumes when they were built. The parents have really been awesome with us to try and solve the problem," Massel said. "We have not actually had anything bad happen, but we wanted to be proactive."

Massel said school administrators have been discussing the issue with town staff for the past few months and that town staff have listened to the school's concerns.

A couple more items that Massel said would improve the safety situation at the school aside from a more permanent traffic flow remedy would be a sidewalk for children to walk on at 23 Avenue and a crosswalk from 23 Avenue across 23 Street leading into the school grounds.

"(Town staff) have been really supportive and they've listened to our concerns," she said.

Massel said school administrators recognize there isn't a lot of space for parents' vehicles to manoeuvre once they get into the parking area at the school, so she is requesting that parents park in the northeast lot rather than the staff parking lot to minimize the chance of children getting injured by a moving vehicle.

Massel said she knows there are space issues in the parking area, but her main concern is the safety of the students. Students will sometimes wander into the staff parking lot at recess, especially at the start and end of the breaks since an entranceway to the school is located directly across from the staff parking lot.

"We recognize that there are some challenges out there with lack of space," she said.

Derek Sutherland, the town's coordinator of protective services, wrote in a briefing note to councillors that more permanent changes at the roadways leading into the school are not planned for this year, as no provision was made for them in the 2014 budget. But he said signage indicating the temporary one-way roads could be erected for about $700, plus the cost of labour.

Miki Town students experience Didsbury

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

Snowmobiling and other traditional Canadian activities were part of a five-day visit for 15 students from Miki Town, Japan recently.

The students, along with three chaperones were in Didsbury from March 20 to 24 as part of a visit to Alberta that also included a trip to Calgary and the Alberta Rockies.

The trips have been an annual event for Miki Town students since 2005, when the Maple Exchange Program was initiated.

Students were paired with Didsbury-area families and experienced traditional Canadian activities.

Kakeru Zota, aged 14, said he enjoyed his visit, getting the opportunity to try snowmobiling. He also helped push a car that had slid off the side of the road due to slippery road conditions.

"I was surprised when the car crashed and we had to push the car," he said.

Kathy Epp, who hosted Zota, said her family has hosted a Miki Town student two previous times and finds it extremely enjoyable.

"It's just like having another child in your family. They just blend in so well," she said.

Kaelyn Epp said he enjoys interacting with the students, and finds that they are like having another sibling. Because his family has hosted a Miki Town student in the past, the cultural differences get less over time.

"It's pretty fun. You get more experienced," he said.

Lee Hammond and his family hosted a Miki Town student for the eighth time.

"For me, it's a matter of having my children learn the cultures of another country and being able to take people for their face value. It's kind of interesting when you see the children get together – there's no language barrier, they mesh well and they play just like any kids would. It doesn't matter where they're from. It's so nice to see," he said.

Hammond said he hopes more Didsbury families will get involved in the future.

"It's taken a long time to get it to where it is now and it would be a shame to let it fall by the wayside," he said.

Hannah Hammond, Lee's daughter, said she finds it interesting to learn about other cultures. She went on an exchange to Japan in the past.

"It was very interesting," she said.

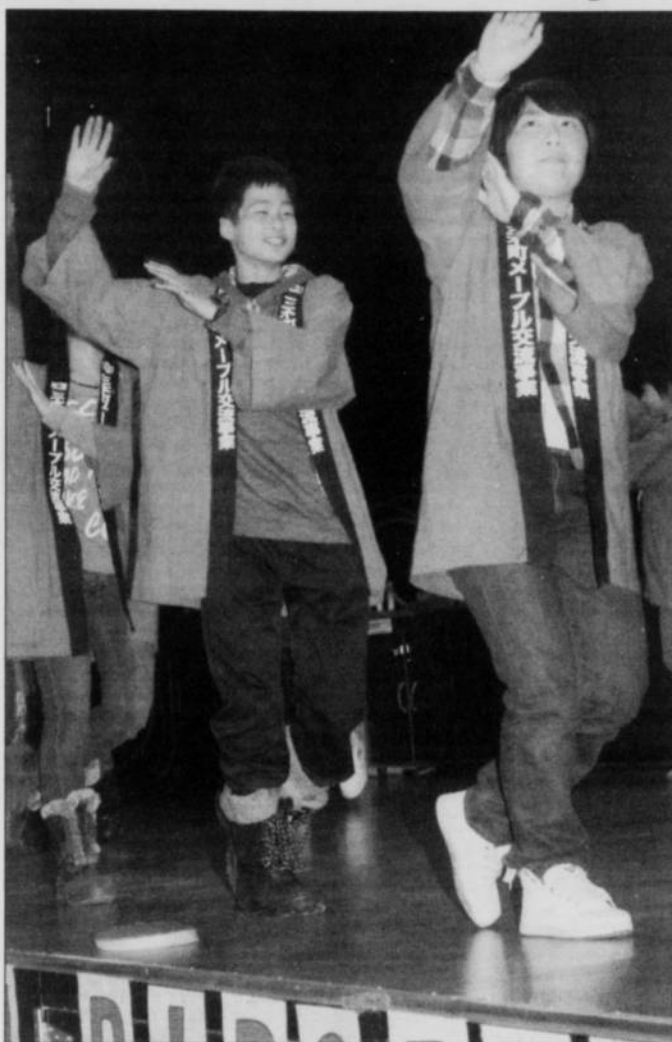

Haruka Ido, who stayed with the Hammonds, visited Westglen School and tried snowboarding while she was in Didsbury.

"It was difficult (but) I would try it again. It was interesting," she said, adding that learning more English was the best part of the trip.

The best part of the experience "was just to learn about the Japanese culture and just having fun with the students that come here," added Jonah Hammond.

Students from Didsbury hope to travel to Miki Town next year.

A separate twinning of Miki Town and Didsbury happened in 2009 when municipal officials from Miki Town travelled to Didsbury to mark the partnership.

Members of the public were invited to tour Bethany Didsbury last week during an open house for the new seniors' facility.

Bethany Care Didsbury opened

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

Seniors will begin moving in this week to Bethany Care Didsbury, the community's newest seniors' care facility.

The new facility will accommodate 100 seniors when fully occupied, with 25 beds allocated to seniors with dementia. The two-storey, 8,100-square-metre facility was four years in the planning stages.

During a grand opening ceremony on March 24, Greer Black, the retiring chief executive officer of Bethany, said a lot of large windows were incorporated in the design of the building to allow as much natural light into the building as possible. The building is made of steel and concrete to minimize the impact of fire or other natural disaster.

"The other thing you'll notice is there are a number of open spaces for visiting and gathering. While needing a private room and private spaces are important, we also thought that it's important to gather and provide rooms of different sizes," he said.

The facility also features a commercial kitchen on-site and laundry facilities in each individual room. Every suite on the second floor has its own balcony as well.

The provincial government allocated $10 million toward the project, with some fundraising being contributed to the facility by the Bethany Care Foundation. The remainder of the roughly $20-million price tag will be mortgaged.

"Our government is very proud to be part of this," said Alana DeLong, MLA for Calgary-Elbow, who represented Minister of Health Fred Horne at the opening ceremony.

Bruce Rowe, MLA for Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills, said he was pleased that the facility would allow seniors to remain a part of the area that they lived in for many years.

"I've always felt that caring for our seniors is more than a duty or a moral obligation. It is a true service in the most noble sense. As we age, certain facts become clear. We know that there may come a day when we're no longer able to fully care for each other, therefore organizations like the Bethany Care Society (become important)," he said.

Black said town representatives have been extremely supportive of Bethany's entry into Didsbury.

"They were just so open, helpful and welcoming," he said.

Didsbury deputy mayor Lavar Adams summed up the caring history of the community, with Didsbury's first hospital being opened in 1919. A dedicated hospital was then built in the community in 1944.

"Nowadays, we have our hospital as well as ... Aspen Ridge. Today we celebrate the addition of Bethany Didsbury to our community and we welcome the added value this facility brings to our town," he said.

Bethany worked closely with Alberta Health Services (AHS) on the project to make sure it meets government standards. Dr. Francois Belanger, AHS medical director for central and southern Alberta, said Bethany will add needed space in Didsbury for seniors who need support.

"At the end of the day, it will be about the residents and the folks that work here," he said.

In an interview following the presentation, Black said Bethany decided to come to Didsbury because the organization has centres in Red Deer, Sylvan Lake and Calgary, and Didsbury was a good point in between to put another facility.

The spaces at Bethany Didsbury have been contracted to AHS and AHS will be making decisions about who resides in the facility. AHS will also provide the funding for nurses, care aides and other health related professionals residents may need.

Black said residents may be drawn from the surrounding area, depending on who needs the services offered by the facility the most.

"The focus is to be Didsbury and the surrounding area, but the surrounding area will be ... wherever the demand is and the need is," he added, noting that residents could come from Olds or Carstairs as well.

Bethany will be working with AHS over the next month to move residents from long-term care to Bethany with the first residents to be moved this week and the remainder to be moved at a later date.

"We'll be moving people on a staged basis, taking about four or five people a day. It'll be potentially about 20 people a week. We need to learn about the residents, what their care needs are ... so our staff are not overwhelmed and the residents are not overwhelmed," Black said

Editorial Time for ticket changes

Like Canadians everywhere, Albertans of all ages love their cars and trucks, whether it's for long summer road trips or for just driving around town on a weekend afternoon or evening.

Yet with more and more people calling Alberta home these days, there has been a corresponding increase in the number of traffic tickets handed out to speeders and other violators, both in urban and rural communities.

and placed in the hands of a system overseen by adjudicators.

Under such a system, violators would be subject to administrative penalties instead of criminal sanctions. It wouldn't apply to impaired drivers, but would cover most speeders.

Minister Denis says such a system would have the significant benefit of freeing up court resources for use against more serious criminals.

"Judges, justices of the peace, the Alberta Crown Prosecution Service and the province's police services would have increased capacity to focus on more serious criminal and family law matters," said Denis.

"Courtrooms will be freed up to hear serious criminal matters, family law matters and other civil cases."

Over the past decade, resource pressures on the court system have led to longer and longer wait times across the province, meaning accused persons, as well as witnesses, police officers and others are forced to endure ever longer delays in having their days in court.

In one recent high-profile case in Airdrie, a judicial stay was ordered in a serious sexual assault case because of unreasonable delays.

No one wants to see serious criminal prosecutions jeopardized because the courts are tied up dealing with speeders who could be dealt with just as well outside the court system.

As such, the province should move forward with the proposed change to the way speeders are prosecuted.

Letters to the editor

Town staff need to focus on priorities

I noticed in the Didsbury Review that the town is going to address the issue of signage again. According to the manager of planning and infrastructure, Karen Henry, a petition was circulated in 2012 as the residents were opposed to the look of the signs ("they were too contemporary"). I don't know if she was here in 2012, but there is more to the story. Another reason the petition was signed was due to the cost associated with them. People saw it as a total waste of money that could be put to much better use. Let's make sure everyone knows the whole story, not just one side of it.

It is time for the town's management team to quit this ridiculousness. We are paying hundreds of thousands of dollars to these people to manage our town, so focus on what is needed. Fix the streets and sidewalks properly. Quit wasting taxpayers' dollars on signage in a town where people can easily find their way around. So, to our councillors and our mayor, put a stop to this ridiculousness. Get these people back on track and use that money to do the repairs properly the first time, so they don't have to be continually redone. The last thing this town needs is make-work projects.

Brent Swain
Didsbury

DAN SINGLETON

In fact, more than two million traffic tickets were issued in the province in 2013. And of all those tickets, less than half were paid by their due date, leading in turn to required court appearances.

The increased number of drivers, coupled with a marked rise in use of technology such as photo radar and red light cameras, has really started to put pressure on Alberta's court system, says Alberta Justice Minister Jonathan Denis.

In an effort to address the court pressures created by all those speeding tickets, the province has launched a series of consultations aimed at finding long-term solutions.

One of the possible solutions being considered would see minor, non-Criminal Code driving offences taken out of the court system

Letter writers wanted

The Didsbury Review has always encouraged readers to write Letters to the Editor on matters of public interest. Forty years ago the newspaper published some tips on letter writing, tips that still apply today. "Keep it short and interesting. Use short sentences, keep paragraphs short. This makes your writing interesting. Write like you talk and don't try to write like a college professor. Avoid sarcasm - this is very hard to handle, even for accomplished reporters. You make a bad impression if you start out to hurt somebody's feelings. Don't be cute - these attempts usually don't come off as the writer intends. And always make your strongest point first."

Multi-family garbage bins to be picked up by Can-Pak

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

Town council decided at its March 25 meeting to switch to Can-Pak Environmental for pickup of multi-family garbage bins effective July 1.

The decision was made as part of a larger discussion council had regarding garbage, recyclable and compostable material pickup in town. The town awarded Can-Pak a three-year solid waste collection contract in April 2013. At that time, the town initiated curbside recycling for every household in the community.

Council also decided at the March 25 meeting to have compostable material picked up in late January, reversing the current practice of not picking up compostable material between November and March.

Coun. Garth Hollinger said since the Mountain View Regional Waste Management Commission already has a system in place for picking up multi-family garbage bins, he saw no reason to change.

Christofer Atchison, the town's coordinator of legislative services, told councillors that many of the complaints the town received from residents regarding Can-Pak's pickup of garbage were related to communication and mechanical breakdowns from the company. Atchison said these issues have been resolved.

Coun. Joyce McCoy said she was ambivalent about changing the .08 cubic metre bin size for recyclables because converting to a smaller bin would mean more of a chance that the contents could be blown out of the bin by wind, but at the same time a larger bin would mean there could be more opportunity to recycle more items. She said if the town could get a larger blue bin for the same cost, that would be worth doing.

Administrators suggested that in order to help minimize the chance that materials could be blown out by the wind, that larger and heavier items should be placed on top.

Deputy Mayor Lavar Adams said most people living in his neighbourhood are using the blue bin for recyclables, and that most people like the smaller bin because it's easier to manoeuvre.

McCoy also said that more people need to use the green bin to recycle compostable materials.

"There's lots that use it very well but there's others that don't use it," she said.

In an interview following the meeting, McCoy said analyzing the feedback on the size of the blue bin for another year would be beneficial.

She said some people only recycle during the summer months so in order to get an accurate assessment on whether the size of the bin is appropriate, the status quo should remain in place for another year before analyzing whether or not the program is working as intended.

"Let's see if the townspeople are happy or unhappy with it and then make a decision. The cost of replacing those bins with a bigger blue bin with a lid on it would be huge for the town," she said.

Police briefs

Didsbury RCMP assist in arrest

Didsbury RCMP assisted with the arrest of a Mountain View County-area couple on March 22 after a 22-year-old Carstairs woman was pulled over by Olds RCMP for reckless driving.

After initiating a traffic stop on Highway 2A just south of the Bergen Road at about 2:45 a.m., the officer tested the woman for signs of intoxication. She was found to have a blood alcohol content of .14.

She will be appearing in Didsbury court to answer a charge of impaired driving. The passenger in the vehicle, Jason Rowland of Olds, was arrested and charged with uttering threats, resisting arrest and assaulting a peace officer. While he pled guilty on March 24 to assaulting a peace officer – and received a $1,000 fine – he remains in custody on the other charges.

Police warn about scams making rounds

Didsbury RCMP report that several scams are again making the rounds in the area, with three reports of people being contacted in regard to the grandparents scam in the last three weeks. There were no victims.

In another scam, a local couple was victimized when they sent $6,000 to an online credit company purportedly helping people with previous credit problems get money they need. In this instance, RCMP say the victims went online and filled out what appeared to be legitimate forms for a loan. The couple was then asked to provide money to cover the interest of the loan. The couple sent $6,000 but no loan was ever provided.

YOUR CAR IS SPEAKING TO YOU Are you listening?

Can you hear what your car is telling you?

Yes, your car talks to you, and it's pretty important that you listen to it! Every machine emits sounds, which can be interpreted as a sort of language. You can learn a lot about your car's well-being by listening to it carefully.

Today's cars and trucks have much quieter engines than those of a few years ago. One consequence of this is that motorists are now compelled to depend more on dashboard displays for signs of problems. Unfortunately, many drivers tend to ignore these lights and dials. Because modern vehicles are tougher and better built than ever, the car might continue to work for a while, even if something is wrong or if a part is worn out.

Engine sounds, especially from older cars, can tell us lots about a car's well-being!

Ignoring these warning signs, though, might cause an accident, putting your life or someone else's in jeopardy.

So, when starting up and driving your car or truck, pay good attention to the sounds coming from the engine room and from the whole car itself. Abnormal sounds could be an indication of trouble in your engine, transmission, brakes, steering, or exhaust system. You might even hear some parts of the body telling you something is going wrong.

If your knowledge of all things mechanical is limited, the next time you start your car, concentrate on what it sounds like as it runs normally, in good condition. Then, if you later hear something abnormal, try your best to describe the sound and where it is coming from.

Get your car to your local dealership or private garage as soon as possible and describe what you noticed to your mechanic.

Most of the time, your car will be whispering smooth sounds that make you happy and comfortable.

But remember: as soon as you don't like a sound, have it checked.

At the least, you might be saving money by preventing a small problem from developing into a major one.

Elks Club makes donation

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

The Didsbury Elks Club made a $4,000 donation last week to the parent advisory council (PAC) at Horizon School to go toward playground equipment at the special needs school.

The school, located in Olds, is one of the few schools in the province that caters to children and young adults with special needs. Students from three separate counties and nine communities throughout Central Alberta attend the school, from Rocky View County to Penhold.

Kathryn Owens, chair of the school's parent advisory council, said the base of the playground that is used by students in Hartman Green adjacent to the school is no longer safe, so the equipment needs to be replaced.

"That was the impetus to get us moving on something that would be inclusive and accessible and safe and secure for our students and for the entire community and give our kids the maximum amount of independent play that they can have," she said.

Owens explained that because the park belongs to the Town of

Paul Frey/MVP Staff

Terry Phillips, grand exalted leader of the Didsbury Elks Club, presents a cheque for $4,000 to Kathryn Owens, chair of the Horizon School Parent Advisory Council, to go toward new playground equipment for students at the school.

Olds, everyone will have access to it, but it will be fenced to ensure that Horizon students who use it will remain safe. She said that because many Horizon students have been supervised by adults for much of their lives, many of them don't know how to play with other children or with the equipment. So by fencing the area, the students can play but still be supervised by adults from just beyond the fencing.

The Town of Olds has contributed $25,000 toward the project and the Didsbury Elks contributed $2,000 with another $2,000 being matched by the provincial Elks foundation. Owens said while the school is located in Olds, many of the students that attend live in Didsbury.

The PAC has raised $59,000 toward the goal of $177,256. It hopes to achieve its fundraising goal later this year to be able to install the equipment by autumn. The PAC is also applying for grants that match funds already raised.

"We're really trying to reach out to all the communities that have kids that attend our school. Hopefully, all of them, like this Didsbury group, who over the years has contributed to the Horizon School before, they'll jump on board and help us reach our goal," Owens said.

Terry Phillips, the grand exalted ruler of the Didsbury Elks Club, said when club members heard about Horizon's need, they were excited to help out. The Didsbury Elks and Horizon School have been working together on various projects since the 1970s.

"They came to us with a request for some money for a new playground and the Elks' mandate is to help children," she said, adding that members of the club felt the project was a good fit. "That's what we do as Elks members."

Town to take strategic plan to residents

BY PAUL FREY
MVP Staff

Residents will be receiving a copy of council's new strategic plan in their mailboxes.

Council voted on March 25 in favour of spending about $3,700 on design, printing and mail-out services to send 4,800 copies of the document to residents' mailboxes, although not all councillors were in favour.

The plan lays out council's vision of how it sees the Town of Didsbury responding to community needs over the next four years through to October 2017.

The plan also encompasses how council will carry out its mission over the next few years. Council accepted its vision as "a vibrant, sustainable and unified Didsbury" while it also accepted the mission of "(encouraging) community engagement through providing open communication in a caring, welcoming and responsive environment."

While Coun. Garth Hollinger raised objections to the cost of the mail-out, he said he hoped the document would be a condensed version and not the 30-page document that council was working with. The town will be sending out the condensed version. Hollinger voted against council's motion.

"I want the community to be informed as much as possible but I... think (through) the use of the newspaper people are getting a lot of information a lot better," he said in an interview.

Coun. Joyce McCoy, who also cast a dissenting vote, said following the meeting she thought that the town could save money by printing the strategic plan in-house or sending it out electronically.

"I'm objecting to the actual cost of the printing and processing of it," she said, adding that if people pay bills in person, they could get it at the front counter. An accompanying action plan that council and administration will use for internal purposes that identifies the steps to be taken to implement the strategic plan was also adopted by council at the March 25 meeting.

LEUKER, Bernhard

Bernhard Leuker passed away suddenly in hospital on March 19th, 2014 at age 53 after years of health trials. He was the youngest of three, born on August 24th, 1960 to Bernhard and Maria Leuker in Germany. At age 19 he immigrated to Canada, making Calgary his new home. In 1986 Bernhard was married to his sweetheart Mechtild, starting their new life together in Didsbury, and raising two sons. As a young man Bernhard took a dairy course at Olds College, then worked on dairy farms, eventually learning cheese-making at Neapolis Cheese Plant. He was driven by his lifelong dream of someday owning and running a farm. While still living in Didsbury, his entrepreneurial skills led him to start a painting company. Finally, his dreams were realized in 2008 when the family moved to the country. Bernhard was very passionate about everything he did, and loved to be busy, filling his time with woodworking, gardening, travelling, camping, and exploring the beautiful Canadian Rockies. Later on he regretted that his health took such a toll on the things he loved. Bernhard was the best person to give advice, from small concerns to major life decisions. He was the guiding light of the family, and will be sorely missed. He is survived by his loving wife of 27 years, Mechtild, son Stephan and wife Kelsey, son Markus, brother Frank and wife Birgit, and sister Elisabeth with her partner Wilfried, and two nieces, as well as other close family around the world.
